Sarah is a bright and curious girl, but she is also shy and introverted. She has always been close to her parents, and she is devastated when they send her away. Sarah's aunt and uncle are kind and welcoming, but they are also very different from her parents. Sarah's aunt is a strict and religious woman, while her uncle is a quiet and gentle man. Sarah struggles to adjust to her new life, and she often feels like an outsider.

One day, Sarah meets a girl named Lucy. Lucy is outgoing and friendly, and she quickly becomes Sarah's best friend. Lucy helps Sarah to come out of her shell, and she introduces her to a group of other friends. Sarah begins to feel more at home in her new town, and she starts to make new memories. However, Sarah still misses her parents, and she often feels homesick.

As Sarah grows older, she begins to understand her parents' reasons for sending her away. She realizes that they wanted her to have a better life than they could provide for her in their small town. Sarah is grateful for her aunt and uncle's love and support, and she knows that they will always be there for her. She also realizes that she has made a new home for herself in her new town.

Homesick is a heartwarming and moving story about the power of friendship and the importance of finding a place where you belong.
