

Speaking Up To End Hunger And Make Our Economy Work For Everyone

Hunger is a serious problem in the United States, and it's one that we can't afford to ignore. Every day, millions of Americans go hungry, and many more are at risk of hunger. This is a problem that affects all of us, and it's one that we need to solve together.

The good news is that we have the resources to end hunger in the United States. We have enough food to feed everyone, and we have the knowledge and expertise to get that food to the people who need it. What we need is the political will to make it happen.

That's where you come in. We need you to speak up and demand that our elected officials take action to end hunger. We need you to call your representatives, write letters to the editor, and attend rallies. We need you to make your voice heard.

Ending hunger is not just the right thing to do, it's also the smart thing to do. When people are hungry, they can't reach their full potential. They can't learn, they can't work, and they can't be healthy. Hunger costs our economy billions of dollars every year.

We can't afford to wait any longer to end hunger in the United States. We need to act now. We need to speak up and demand that our elected officials take action.

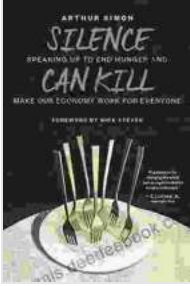

Here are some things you can do to help:

- Contact your elected officials and tell them that you support policies to end hunger.
- Write letters to the editor of your local newspaper about the importance of ending hunger.
- Attend rallies and events to raise awareness about hunger.
- Volunteer your time at a local food bank or soup kitchen.
- Donate to organizations that are working to end hunger.

Together, we can end hunger in the United States. We can make sure that everyone has enough to eat, and we can create a more just and equitable society for all.
