To be eligible to move to the UK, you must meet certain criteria. These criteria vary depending on the type of visa you are applying for, but in general, you must be able to demonstrate that you have a genuine reason for coming to the UK, that you have the financial means to support yourself, and that you meet the English language requirements.

Visa Requirements

There are a number of different types of visas that you can apply for to move to the UK. The most common types of visas include:

The cost of accommodation in the UK varies depending on the location and type of property. In general, London is the most expensive place to live, while smaller towns and cities are more affordable.
